23rd Annual National
Symposium on Children's Grief

SALT LAKE CITY, UT • JUNE 20-22

About the Symposium

The National Alliance for Grieving Children (NAGC) Symposium is the longest running and most comprehensive national conference specific to the topic of childhood bereavement offered in the United States. The NAGC Symposium draws more than 400 professionals and volunteers from a variety of organizations throughout and outside the United States each year. This gathering provides connection with like-minded individuals and high quality educational sessions in an interactive, energizing and motivational setting. Attendees are able to return home at the end of the NAGC Symposium with new information and renewed energy as they continue to provide support to grieving children and teenagers in their local communities.

Conference fees are kept low to accommodate all income levels for individuals and organizations. Scholarships are also offered to those individuals and programs in need of financial assistance to attend.

About the NAGC

The National Alliance for Grieving Children is a not for profit organization that promotes awareness of the needs of children and teens grieving a death and provides education and resources for anyone who wants to support them...because all grieving children deserve a chance to heal.

Through the collective voice of our members and partners we advocate, we educate and we raise awareness.
